The Second Avenue Grass Plot

To The Recorder:—The grass on Second avenue, between Fayette and Harry street, would present a more attractive appearance if a lawn mower was run over it and a fountain erected in the center of the thoroughfare. The borough authorities should either have the grass pulled out by the roots or properly taken care of.

Breaking Up a Gang of Thieves

The police authorities of the county, realizing that many robberies and outrages are occurring within their jurisdiction, are attempting to take into custody all tramps and suspicious characters. The many robberies at Chestnut Hill, Italia and other places along the county line have at last brought the county constables into action.

The county authorities were informed that a gang of tramps had made an old deserted barn at Ambler their headquarters and were visiting towns nearby soliciting food and stalling over things they could lay their hands upon. They were suspected of possessing knowledge of the many suburban houses belonging to the county.

Accordingly, late at night several constables visited the place, and with drawn revolvers, compelled fourteen of the tramps to surrender. The men were handcuffed and taken to the railroad station and placed on a train for Philadelphia.

At Jenkintown a knife six inches long fell from the pocket of one of the men, and he picked it up and tried to cut his throat. One of the constables saw the attempt and caught the man's wrist. Then a desperate struggle ensued for the possession of the knife. The men swayed backward and forward. Several other constables left their prisoners to take a hand in the fight, and two of the latter took advantage of that fact to make a dash for liberty.

They ran to the door of the car, which was moving at a rapid rate of speed, and before they could be captured jumped off and disappeared in the darkness. Meantime the man with the knife had been sitting down on the floor of the car. The knife was taken away from him, and he was doubly secured.

Efforts were made to capture the two men who jumped from the car when the train stopped at Cheltenham Hills, but nothing was seen of them. The twelve remaining men were brought to Philadelphia and kept at the Park and Lehigh avenue police station until the next morning when they were taken to Norristown and are now in jail there.

The residents of West Manayunk are also on the lookout for tramps and suspicious characters, and are determined to rid that and adjacent parts of lower Merion township of the unusual number of such persons who have infested that vicinity for several weeks past. The special policemen of the Reading and Pennsylvania Railroads are co-operating with Special Policemen Watchers in the work and the tramps are gradually disappearing.

Object to Lending a Scaffold

It is now apparent that the Montgomery county authorities will have to build a gallows upon which to hang Charles O. Kaiser, Jr., the convicted wife murderer, on Tuesday September 6. Sheriff Johnson went to Philadelphia, and requested the loan of the scaffold which was used to hang John Wilson. Recently the board of Directors of the Philadelphia prison passed a resolution that thereafter they would not loan the gallows, and when Sheriff Johnson made the request he was informed of the resolution. The Sheriff now thinks that the best way out of the dilemma is for the county to erect their own scaffold.

The last previous execution in Norristown was that of John Wilson, who was brought from Chicago for trial. He gave himself up to the authorities, accusing himself of the murder of Anthony Daly, in the lower end of the county. The remains of Daly were found floating in the Wissahickon creek. An effort was made to save Wilson's life on the ground of insanity. He was pronounced sane, however, and was hanged on January 13, 1887.

Kaiser had apparently given up all hope of securing a reprieve. He was visited by his father several days ago and was then informed that he might as well prepare himself for the worst.

Rev. Andrew Flechtner, Kaiser's spiritual adviser, is at present enjoying a vacation, and during his absence Rev. Mr. Paulston is attending to the religious needs of Kaiser.

Sheriff Johnson has not yet decided as to who will be admitted to witness the hanging.

It is said that Kaiser has changed considerably during the past month and there is some indication of him breaking down.

Smart Swindle

A new scheme to rob farmers has bobbed up. A couple of men drive on the promises and present false papers purporting to give state authority for examinations of well and cisterns under the pure food laws. They inspect the water through microscopes and seal all kind of microbes, and cholera germs and typhoid fever bugs, and permit farmer and his wife to look through the microscope where, of course, they see the menagerie that always has and will be contained in a drop of water. The frightened people are then asked to apply certain remedies which the fakirs sell to them at a high figure (a little plain soda, and nothing more) and then go on their swindling way.

More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in its merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, sores, in the shortest space of time. H. Maxwell Harry and W. E. Supplee & Bro., West Conshohocken.

FROM GRANT

TO MCKINLEY

How Appomattox Paved the Way for Manila and Santiago. A Nation Built By a Party.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—The beginning of American victories over Spain was not at Manila, but at Appomattox. When General Grant said to the beaten and broken Confederates after the surrender, "Keep your horses; you will send them to plow your fields," he sounded the high keynote of that consistent Republican policy which has resulted in making this nation a union indeed, not a mere collection of communities pinned together with bayonets. This has been brought strongly to mind by two events which have taken place here within the last few days—the visit of the survivors of Pickett's division as the guests of Philadelphia Grand Army men, and the meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of War Veterans' clubs, for the purpose of reminding the old soldiers and their sons, to whom the war of the sixties is only heroic hearsay, that there is a soldier's ticket on the Republican corner of the ballot this year which deserves their votes as representative of both the past and the future of the country.

However they might appear at the first glance, no two meetings were ever more consistent with each other. Both represented the comradeship of all true soldiers, who, in reaching out the hand of gallant recognition toward all brave men who stood in the opposing line, do not forget the fraternity of men who have fought under the same banner and faced the same fire. A veteran of Pickett's who left a large fraction of himself in Pennsylvania after that last mad dash at Gettysburg and now walks on crutches made this point very well. He was a typical back country Virginian—tall, thin, and to that one who shook one of the hallways at the swiftest hotel in Philadelphia by appearing upon the ground floor after midnight, in sock feet, with his suspenders hanging from his shoulders, and the water pitcher in his hand, inquiring where the pump was—but he is a notable man in his neighborhood, has been continuously justly of the peace for 20 years, and served a term in the legislature. And while he might not be up to date in some peculiarities of modern civilization, he is full of the homely common sense and useful knowledge.

Experience teaches the observing that there is many a man who is liable to blow out the gas who is nevertheless a most consistent and devoted member of the gas company. The "square" said: "When General Grant started your party on that high plane of treatment of our people he put us on our honor. We were down on our backs, and the Republican party was thrashed in absolute power. In our opinion it was only a question how many of our leaders you would consider it necessary to hang. You might have treated us as the prostrate inhabitants of conquered islands, and you received us instead as fellow citizens, and lived up to your proclamations that you had been fighting with us for four years only to keep us in that relation. Sleepless Nights

Run Down in Health—Constant Pains in Arms and Shoulders—A Valuable Gift—Health, Appetite and Sleep—Pains are Gone.

"I was run down in health and could hardly keep on my feet. The least exertion would cause palpitation and I would feel as though I was being smothered. My nights were sleepless and I felt worse in the morning than when I retired. My liver was out of order and I had constant pains in my arms and shoulders and numbness in my limbs. I was sometimes dizzy and would fall. My son gave me two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and they proved of more value than a very costly gift. In a short time after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I had a good appetite, sleep came back to me and the pains all left me." MRS. ANNIE E. STREETER, 621 Market Ave., Lancaster, Pa.

RAVAY OFFICER HOLLAND
A Judge of Human Nature and quick to discern true worth.

Lawyer James B. Holland of this borough sought for himself an apple tree yielding his time for some one to "discover" him.

He struck out for himself along his own line and soon learned the value of a practical education. Post lore and literature are all well, except the mental embellishments. But in these days the broad view is those who can accurately and neatly keep a set of books or take down the words of a speaker as they fly from his lips and deftly convert the notes by type writing into printed manuscript. Such trained minds are in demand.

Mr. Holland says: "I have employed several stenographers who were students at the Schuylkill College of Business, and it pleases me to say that they have given satisfaction in every respect."

Any young man or woman who wants a sound money education address the College, Norristown.
