Harold Wagner has approved payment of $2,544,638.33 in liquor license refunds to 1034 municipalities in the State, representing allocations from the fund of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control board, as authorized by law. Included in the State's towns being refunded is West Conshohocken borough which received $200.

West Borough Tax Collection To Start Soon

Bills Will Be Issued

Early Next Week;

1946 Account Settled

The delayed collection of West Conshohocken borough and school taxes for the year 1947 is expected to begin no later than September 1. The 1947 borough taxes will be collected by the school district. The only outstanding items are some per capita school taxes still unpaid.

The names of these delinquents have been placed in the hands of a deputy collector who will present bills for the amount of tax plus the added cost for collection.

Mr. Holland has made application for the 1947 borough taxes to be collected by the school district. He is expected to be received within a day or two. As soon as the school district taxes are received, Mr. Holland will be presented to the court for approval. Upon approval the 1947 duplicates for the borough, school and county will be presented to Mr. Holland for collection.

In order to expedite the tax collection as much as possible, the tax bills are now being printed and will be ready for delivery the first of the week. The notices will be placed in the mail by September 1.

Delay in getting the bills in the mail will change rebate and penalty dates to a much later date than ever before in the history of the West Borough.

Bank Loans Needed

The West Conshohocken town council has received very little tax from the collector since the first of the year and has received nothing since the first of May. As a result, the borough is dependent upon bank loans to meet current expenses. The new police car which was ordered several months ago has not yet been received. The town council will be delivered within the next few days. Six business firms in West Conshohocken contributed $100 each toward the payment of the police car. The borough still has an additional amount of about $1300 to raise for the full payment. Had the tax bills been mailed earlier, the borough would have been more than sufficient money received to pay off the borrowed money and also pay for the police car.

The only additional money the school district has received above that by the borough is the per capita tax. The school district was materialized in the finances by reason of the sale of high school equipment, from which it received approximately $4000, and the fact that the school has been in operation since June, since which time teachers' salaries are paid. The district is expected to pay the tuition of the pupils attending Conshohocken High school, and the tuition of the pupils attending Conshohocken Junior high school each month, at the rate of approximately $10 each for 150 pupils. The collector will receive money of the 1947 taxes before the first tuition payment will become due.

The borough tax is 14 mills. The school tax is 25 mills plus 55 per cent.

Crippled Children Centers Opened

Starting October 1 the Philadelphia Society for Crippled Children and Adults will increase its efforts to help the handicapped in the county by instituting a completely reorganized physical therapy program. The centers will be staffed by two physical therapists and will be open once a week for the work. The exact location and definite operating time schedule will be announced at a later date. West Conshohocken is one of the municipalities for the area to be sent to the Philadelphia Society for Crippled Children and Adults, 20th and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia.

Meet Your Roadside Friends

"Anything for me?" That eager question is familiar to every mailman and postmaster in the land. They have to answer it at least a hundred times a day, but they're not surprised. Everybody likes to get a message from a friend.

On all the major highways in the nation—from Maine to Florida and from New York to California—there are friendly messages all along the way, plainly addressed to any driver who will see them. The messages are short and to the point, but they are very much to the point. They say: "Sleep Hill," "Curve Ahead," "Dangerous Intersection," "School Zone—Drive Carefully." Wise drivers read them and obey them, because they know that road signs exist for their protection and are put there as a friendly warning of hidden dangers that lie ahead.

For as Confucius said: "If a man takes no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand."

Patients at Veterans Hospital Find Relaxation and Benefit In Library

Men from the Philadelphia area, who are among the 2500 patients in the Veterans Administration hospital at Coatesville, take advantage of the hospital library which recently added to its large collection a 2000-book general library turned over by the Army from its Ft. Story Post. In addition to its regular books, veterans read magazines, newspapers and donated copies of the book of the month club recent selections in a library painted light green with soft background music.

According to Miss Jeanne Kelly, director of the library division, the improved facilities and general atmosphere have resulted in greater use of the library by the patients. The new collection includes a large number of books on the history of the United States, and a considerable amount of reading. The one book for which the supply never is great enough to meet demand is the dictionary. The World Almanac, a close second is the World Almanac. The latter settles many questions, helps on quiz work and is just plain interesting reading.

Another feature is the popularity of self-help books, which varies from the particular illness being treated. Lehmans' Peace of Mind and the dictionary, and Karel Horney's reading at home? These questions are frequently asked and answers are always the same. The reading habits of hospitalized veterans are pretty much the same as the rest of those in the same age group.

World War I men still call for Zane Grey, Empey, Helluva War, and other books popular in previous years. World War II men record the same demand as any current best-seller list published each week and January, February, and March the ten most popular books for VA hospitals were: The Egg and I, Macdonald; The Black Rover, Conner; Peace, Ball, Loman; Lydia Bailey, Roberts; The Razor's Edge, Maugham; Foxes of Harrow, Yerby; The Tempered Blade, Brett; The Roba, Norman; The White Tower, Ullman; Trail Dust and Saddle Leather, Mora; religious books are very popular also.

Traffic Count On Ridge Pike Made By State

Continuing Study

Shows 52,408 Total

In Four-Day Period

An automatic tabulator counted 52,408 vehicles on Ridge pike between City Line and Manor road during a four-day period in July.

The figures were obtained yesterday through the traffic survey division of the State department of highways at the Broad Street station building, Philadelphia.

The survey, begun early in July, may be continued another month, a spokesman said. He expressed the belief that no figures are available for past years for comparison.

A crew of State employees on various occasions have halted all vehicles in order to ascertain from drivers their place of origin and destination and whether they would find another route shorter and more convenient. The check has been conducted throughout the day and night, the employees working under powerful lights after dark. At other times an automatic tabulator records each passing vehicle through an electric cone placed from one side of the highway to the other. The device is at the base of a utility company pole on the southeast side of Ridge pike about 800 feet from City Line.

The division was unable to say how many vehicles were pleasure cars and how many were buses, trucks and commercial vehicles.

Daily Tabular Reports

The highest number recorded was on Sunday, July 20, when traffic reached 13,000.

On Thursday, July 17, the tabulator showed 10,268 vehicles passed a given point; on Friday, the count was 13,008; Saturday, 13,001.

Other figures showed a peak earlier disclosed 14,940 vehicles used Ridge pike on Thursday; 9,171 on Friday; 9,566 on Saturday and 12,169 on Sunday.

A similar survey has been under way on Germantown pike between Northwestern avenue and Thomas road. The traffic survey division will release figures later, it was said. A spokesman explained that other compilations are incomplete at this time.

Water Carnival At Marble Hall

Stunts performed by a Laborator retriever were an added attraction Saturday at a water carnival held at former Donovan's quarry, Marble Hall, under auspices of the White-Marsh Civic association.

The dog, owned by A. G. McElwee, co-chairman of the committee in charge of arranging the event, dived into the water and carried a baby's doll to feed to the bank of the quarry. In a second act the animal in a rescue demonstration pulled Mrs. McElwee from the center of the quarry to the bank.

Luki Mansell, representing the American Red Cross, delivered a lecture on first aid illustrated by Miss Gene Bill and her brother, James. The value of artificial respiration was demonstrated.

John M. Bill, Jr., neighborhood scout commissioner and Boy Scouts of Barren Hill maintained a tent on the premises.

A comedy act was presented by Henry Gally, portraying Mr. Wilson, a boat builder, interested in making a contribution to the association, and Robert Snyder, Jr., and J. Oliveri, clowns. The clowns rowed Mr. Wilson to the middle of the quarry where he was to write a check payable to the association, according to Stanley Leighton, president, who did a running commentary. Somehow the clowns upset the boat and the announcer observed that he guessed that was the end of the contribution.

Barren Hill Volunteer fire company presented a demonstration in the use of an air pack, an oxygen mask, permitting the wearer to remain under water or to enter a room filled by poisonous gases. The safety device, standard equipment in Barren Hill, was worn by Chris Wagner, Jr., during the demonstration. Vernon Miller and Norman H. Woolley directed a water pumping demonstration in which firemen studied equipment they are considering purchasing.

The Philadelphia Canoe club, represented by 12 members, offered a canoe tilting act, a bucket race and other features which included rowing spectators around the quarry.

In swimming contests prizes went to Marie Wagner, William Hennessy, Albert Hiner, Robert Snyder, John Oliver and Ralph Zernone. Charles Hennessy, Jr. and David McElwee won awards for diving.

Leighton was in charge of the event.

The Cost of Federal Government

The subject of economy or extravagance in governmental expenditures—and particularly those of the Federal Government—has a habit of almost immediately getting tangled up with partisan politics. That is most unfortunate, both because it leads us away from the main issue into the blind alley of political controversy and because (whatever the factors which started Federal expenditures on their upward spiral) the situation now has (or at least should have) gotten far beyond the stage of being a mere partisan issue. The best proof of that fact is the brave promise of the Eightieth Congress to reduce the Administration's budget by six (House version) or at least four and a half (Senate version) billions of dollars. The slash actually made was in the gross amount of some $2,800,000,000, but practically all of that saving has been absorbed by unscheduled appropriations for foreign aid and for stockpiling of critical materials.

The bald fact, it is becoming steadily more clear, is that Congress won't do anything substantial about curtailing present astronomical governmental expenses unless and until the powerful lobbying of the Federal agencies themselves is countered by an equally powerful and vociferous "lobby" of constituents back home. In the last analysis, the sole power to bring about a reversal of the present trend in Federal expenditures rests in the hands of the voters themselves. And the rank and file of voters, as opposed to well-organized minorities, are notoriously difficult to arouse to concerted action.

Nevertheless, some figures recently compiled by the St. Louis Star-Times should awaken voters to action, if anything can accomplish that much-to-be-desired result. Mere statistics as to the cost of operating our Federal Government mean little, if anything. The totals are beyond the comprehension of the ordinary citizen. But there are two other bases of comparison which do give us readily understandable figures and some really startling facts.

The first comparison is between the cost of this Nation's food and the operating cost of its Government. In 1929 (without bothering with the actual numbers in billions), it cost about one-fifth as much to operate the Federal Government as it did to provide food for the inhabitants of our country. Through the 'thirties and on into 1940, the ratio varied considerably, but was roughly one to two. In 1941, the cost of government closely approached the Nation's food bill; in 1942, it was twice as much; and in 1944 it reached a peak of more than three times the total cost of food.

In the calendar year 1946, which was not a war year, government still cost more than the National food bill, despite the tremendous rise in food costs. It was some twelve times what it had been in 1929. Even eliminating altogether the budget items which represent war activities, the cost of government in 1946 was more than five times that of 1929 and almost half as much as the Nation spent for its 1946 food.

The other comparison deals with the per capita cost of food and government during the same period—in other words, how much the "average man" has spent and is now spending for each. In 1929, the figures were $31 for government and $162 for food. By 1946, the food cost had risen by about 86 percent to $302, while the cost of government was up to $316, just over ten times the 1929 figure (or, disregarding all war activities items, $146 or roughly a 365% increase). Those figures give a pretty accurate idea of just how important to each of us is the present rate of government spending.

The question remains, what are we going to do about a situation which is impoverishing everyone and making it harder and harder for us to provide the food, clothing, and housing needed for ourselves and our families. To bring about any real economy is going to be a "tough fight"; make no mistake about that. Some of the forces to be opposed and overcome are described by Representative Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts in an article which appears in the Reader's Digest for September. For one thing, some if not all of the major bureaucracies have successfully employed within the past few months powerful and effective propaganda machines financed by the very funds which the recent session of Congress sought to reduce.

A particularly flagrant example of other means used to block economy measures was seen recently in the action of the Commissioner of Customs in laying off 85 percent of all that bureau's officers charged with guarding our ports and frontiers against smugglers and narcotic "importers." The purpose, which succeeded until a Congressional investigation of the tactics ensued, was to bring a shower of protests upon the heads of Congressmen for daring to allot to the Customs Bureau of the Treasury Department less than the sum requested by it, although the appropriation was in fact greater than in the previous year.

We repeat, the only means of curbing this sort of arrogant and bloated bureaucracy is a determined and united effort by the rank and file of taxpayers. As voters, they can make their voices heard above the most anguished screams of Federal officeholders who find themselves in danger of being pushed away from the public feeding trough. Senators and Congressmen will listen to their own constituents in preference to any other group. The only difficulty is that the majority of their constituents never speak with a voice which can be heard by their elected representatives in Washington. If and when they do, the cost of Federal Government will start to go down instead of going up.

"...Of Many Things"

Last week was a busy one for the Conshohocken police department, to judge from reports of its activities published in the columns of the Recorder. In addition to routine duties, which include daily servicing of the borough parking meters, seven arrests were made for violations of motor vehicle laws and ordinances (all but one of them for failing to observe "stop" signs at intersections), and three men were arrested in a raid on a private house after numerous complaints by neighbors. Burgess Blair has declared the intention of borough law enforcement officers to continue both campaigns so long as there are violators. Traffic law violations will undoubtedly continue to occur, but because of the continued flow of out-of-town vehicles along our streets and because some local motorists will continue to forget that there are such things as "stop" signs and other traffic regulations to which they are bound to obey, however, that in the other matter no further arrests may be necessary. Following the Burgess' warning that "We intend to take drastic action against any persons who have structures used as drinking rendezvous in the borough and against any people who disturb the peace and tranquility of the neighborhood and disturb other residents, either by night or day."

At last we have an explanation of the great length of time required to get any action from the Veterans Administration—a fact only too well known to every veteran who has applied for any type of "G.I." benefit. It now appears that the vast staff of that organization has simply been too busy figuring out ways of getting out of the Administration offices at the end of the day without wasting precious seconds in the process. If anyone thinks that this is an exaggerated statement of the situation, let him read an official memorandum from Francis Dwyer, assistant administrator, to the entire staff. That memorandum, citing three recent cases of employees knocked down and injured in the quitting-line rush along the corridors of the building, declares: "Most of this running occurs within two or three minutes of closing time. Employees dash from their places of work headed for the nearest exit. Frequently they slip and fall, and catch their heels on stair treads. They bump into others. Injuries result." The same memorandum contains warnings against such occupational hazards as leaning too far back in swivel chairs and sitting on waste baskets. Any comment would, we think, be superfluous.

The great size of the two major service organizations of today—the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars—augmented as they have been by admission to membership in each of veterans of two World Wars, sets off in vivid contrast the thinning ranks of veterans' groups earlier in the century in which this Nation engaged. The Grand Army of the Republic, at one time numbering nearly half a million, mustered just five participants for its last annual convention in Cleveland last week. This week the Spanish-American War Veterans will hold their forty-ninth annual convention at Kansas City, attended by Stephen Johnson of this borough in his capacity as commander of McKinley Post, Camp 10. Mr. Johnson, by the way, is a veteran of World War I as well as of the earlier struggle. Only the Veterans Administration would disclose the actual number of still-living participants in the two earlier wars. As of September 1 of last year, that agency reported 21,029 pensioners attributed to the Civil War and 53,516 to the Spanish-American War, but these figures obviously include widows and other dependents as well as living veterans.

One of the more recent devices employed in the South to "discourage" Negro participation in elections appears to be as much a disingenuous gesture in the direction of the Federal Government as a deterrent to colored would-be voters. In the primary election held earlier this month in Mississippi (home of the late Senator Bilbo), each prospective elector was required to swear his adherence to and accord with the "time-honored and cherished traditions of the South." That high-sounding phrase really means that any Negro daring to vote must put himself on record as opposed to such Federal safeguards and aids as the recently-enacted anti-lynch law, anti-poll tax legislation, and the Fair Employment Practices Commission. This oath is required by a State law enacted earlier this year. Nevertheless, it is understood that of the approximately 12,000 Negroes registered in Mississippi nearly half chose to forswear the Federal protective measures and thus gain the right to cast their ballots in the Mississippi primary.

As anyone knows who has had occasion to deal with wills, the mental processes and reasoning of testators are sometimes difficult to fathom. Wills vary in length and complexity all the way from two or three-line instruments leaving the entire estate to husband or wife up to elaborate documents consisting of many pages of closely-typewritten clauses, sub-clauses, and provisions which not infrequently provide a field day for the legal fraternity if not for the intended beneficiaries. These thoughts are prompted by an estate of some $400,000 which recently passed through the orphan's court of this county. The proceeds, which presumably will be considerably less when the time comes for final distribution, are divided among no less than 36 individuals, some of whom are to receive a 1/44 share; about $30 apiece. Assuming that the probable size of the estate was known at the time the will was drawn, it appears that the intention was merely to leave a remembrance rather than a substantial inheritance. The largest individual share bequeathed amounts to less than $300.

Veterans Hospital - - -

books are requested most by those with mental illnesses. A book called "Huber the Tub" and also "Tuberculosis and How to Cure It" are popular with the TB patients. Thorne Smith's Topper series and the comics are just as popular now as when these men and women were in the armed services. The general American trend toward magazines covering almost any subject is noticed with the VA hospital, as well as outside.

The medical libraries for use of the staff are an important feature of any hospital. The mid-night oil comes in handy long after lights out for those devoted to curing the sick. The subject of war service does not appeal to all patients. Half refuse to do with war and refuse to read anything about it. The other half especially want to read the official history of the engagements or battles in which they served. Other desire historical material of their home town and surrounding areas. Travel books are popular although many wish for books revealing current conditions—too many are labeled ancient history.

Most of the patients request their home town newspaper which in some cases cannot be supplied. In some instances, however, the thoughtfulness or fastidiousness of some patients has made it possible for the home town paper to brighten the life of the hospitalized ex-service man.

Gifts have been received and will continue to be received in substantial quantities. However, too often books of yesterday-year cleaned out of the attic or damp basement are sent to gladden the hearts of veterans, who prefer donated subscriptions to magazines or monthly book clubs. In a few instances draperies and reading lamps have brightened the library while the gifts of potted flowers have been so well received by the patients that one librarian stoutly maintains men are just as interested in flowers as women.

Wildlife Conservation Has Paid Dividends

Prepared for the Recorder by the State Planning Board, Department of Commerce.

Recently released preliminary figures covering 1946 hunting season in Pennsylvania show a remarkable increase in the number of licenses granted and in the bag of large and small game brought in from our State last year. With a total of more than 850,000 licenses issued, the fall hunting season has become one of the most important periods in the year for acquiring the people of this and neighboring states with the beauties and recreational possibilities of our Commonwealth.

There was never a better demonstration of the value of wise conservation than the progress made by the State's Game Commission since the passage of the Hunter's License Law in 1912. At that time Pennsylvania's wildlife population was at its lowest ebb. Deer were a curiosity in our woods. The State was completely "shot out" due to the invention of the pump gun and to the lack of any organized effort to provide shelter for the wild creatures who were once the State's only inhabitants.

It was not until 1920 that the first State game lands were purchased, a tract of 6,000 acres in Elk county. Today, from license fees alone, and at no other expense to the taxpayer the State owns some 600,000 acres of field and forest devoted to the breeding and protection of its wildlife. This is in addition to the more than two million acres of State and Federal forest land purchased with tax-raised funds.

That this has been much more than a sentimental investment, the State Planning Board, of the Department of Commerce, points out, is shown by the recent statistics which show that Arthur H. Carhart in his "Hail of the Wild"

Sportsmen in the United States are spending nearly four billion dollars every year for equipment, travel, license fees, dogs and living expenses. In twelve months the fishermen and hunters spend a sum, according to Carhart's survey, that is equal to about half the capital value of all the cattle in the nation. This is big business even in these billion dollar days.

The conservation of wildlife has done far more for us than to increase the State's tourist and recreation income. It has made thousands of visitors and hundreds of thousands of our people aware of the fact that the State is far more than just a great industrial center. It has revealed Pennsylvania's variety and beauty to us all.

"Oh, Call Back Yesterday: Bid Time Return"

(From the Recorder, issue of August 18, 1922)

After an intermission of three weeks, Conshohocken baseball fans will be given an opportunity to enjoy Montgomery County League baseball at the local park, and an entire new team, composed of local talent and managed by Carroll Meyers, will be seen in action for the first time here.

The Beifield team was discharged after their game with Perkasie here on July 29 and since then no game has been played here. The new team was organized as soon as the league resumed play and has played two games away from home, both being played at Doylestown and both ending in defeat. However, with their first game at home it is to be hoped that the team of localities will be able to break into the win column in the league standing. The attraction for tomorrow is Beifield, which team will make their last appearance of the season here. Many followers of the game are in sympathy with the idea of an all-local team and when the game starts there will be just as many if not more of a crowd present than was at the last game played here.

Manager Meyers has collected the strongest team it is possible for him to get among local talent and while they have suffered two reverses the fans are willing to use indulgence and give them the support they warrant in an endeavor to keep the name of Conshohocken on the baseball map.

(From the Recorder, issue of August 18, 1922)

In response to an invitation from Burgess DeHaven, a half-dozen farmers, members of Cold Point Grange, will bring in a quantity of fresh fruits and vegetables from their farms and offer them for sale at a temporary curb market in Second avenue tomorrow morning.

The Recorder was given information that nearby farmers were having difficulty in finding a market for their products and as the fruit and vegetable season is about at its height, most foodstuffs would rot in the fields and orchards and would be a great loss to the farmers and to the town residents who need the food. An editorial printed in Tuesday's issue of the Recorder was acted upon by Burgess DeHaven who got into communication with representatives of the Cold Point Grange and six growers gladly accepted his proposition that they bring their products to this borough and offer them to the public from a curb market. The farmers will come to Second avenue tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock with loads of fruits and vegetables, all home grown.

No hucksters will be permitted to stand in the market wash will be continued only through the harvest season, to give the people the advantages of securing fresh farm products and to save the farmers from loss.

(From the Recorder, issue of August 20, 1927)

A comedy in real life was enacted among the Italians of this vicinity on Tuesday and Wednesday. Dominic Roshai and Angelo Angilio both work in one of the quarries in West Conshohocken. On Tuesday they quarreled about some trivial matter and Angelo threatened to kill Dominic with an axe. Dominic is engaged to be married to a Norristown girl, and when he visited her that evening told of his trouble. She promptly went to Magistrate Leinhardt the next morning and had a warrant issued for Angelo.

Constable Cope was given the warrant to serve, and Antonio Caruso, the step-father of the girl went with the constable to identify Angelo. The latter had heard of the threatened arrest and left his work to escape to Philadelphia. When the constable and Antonio stepped off the train in this borough Angelo was there to go on, but seeing Antonio and a stranger he started to run away. Antonio promptly drew a pistol and fired at him.

Angelo subsequently gave himself up and was taken to Norristown. When Captain Courdoff heard of the shooting he had a warrant issued for Antonio, who was arrested and given a hearing by Magistrate Higginbotham.

After much talk among the Italians both cases were settled, principally through the efforts of the girl.

Dee's in Finals Of Civic League

Charlie Dee's has earned the right to enter the final play-offs to decide the championship in the Conshohocken Civic Softball League, which will get under way next Tuesday night at 6:15, by defeating Conshohocken Fire Company in two straight games in their play-off series of three games.

Dee's Darlings captured the first game Friday evening when they turned back the Firemen by a 7-4 count on the Sutcliffe Park diamond. Farnum was on the mound for Dee's in both of the championship games and was opposed both times by Robins. Both hurlers pitched good ball with Farnum having a little better of the argument.

In the first game, Dee's took a 3-0 lead in the opening inning and were never headed. They added two in the fourth and scored their first three tallies in the fifth. The Firemen were blanked in the first two stanzas but pushed two runs across in the third. They were held scoreless from then until the final inning when they rallied to add two more to their total.

Dee's clinched their place in the finals by defeating the Firemen 5-3 for the second consecutive time Sunday evening on the Sutcliffe Park diamond. Robins, on the mound for the Firemen, held his opponents to three hits but lost the decision when he pitched a home-run ball to Gregory in the fourth inning with the bases loaded, which produced four runs in addition to one other tally scored in the same frame to account for all the runs of the game for the winners. Farnum gave up five hits but kept them well scattered, the Firemen not being able to score more than one run in any inning.

T. K. Club, who has already gained one decision in the semi-finals, will clash with the Polish Eagles in the second game tonight. Should T. K. win, the series will be over.

The final round to decide the league title, with Dee's already one of the finalists and the winner of the T. K. Club-Polish Eagles series, the other contender, will begin Friday evening at 6:15. The second game will be played Sunday evening beginning at 6:15 and the third and final game, if necessary, the following Tuesday evening at 6. All games will be played on the Sutcliffe Park diamond.

Todd Scores 91x100

In Grand American

Charles H. Todd, 414 East Eighth avenue, shooting with a handicap of 22 yards in the Grand American Handicap Friday in the 48th annual Grand American Trapshooting tournament at Vandalla, Ohio, broke 91 out of 100 clay targets to finish high among the 1786 entrants from all over the nation. Hugh Crossen, Gardiner, Michigan, also handicapped at 22 yards, won the championship with a score of 99. John Rigg, another Conshohocken trapshooter, scored 88x100 with a 24-yard handicap. Walter Beaver, 1946 winner of the North American championship, was called home last Wednesday by a death in his family.

Todd, last year selected as a member of a ten-man all-American trapshooting team by Sports Afield, may have finished in the money, but left for home before shooting ended.

"Huck" Kline Returning to CHS

See a Claus could give Head Coach Harry E. Fox, of the Conshohocken Golden Bears, no more welcome gift than the announcement yesterday that Charles "Huck" Kline, whom he had given up as lost to the 1947 football team, will report with other candidates next Tuesday and be in line to receive the old familiar No. 33 jersey that has been a bulwark of strength in the forward wall for the past two years.

The Kline family moved from Cedar Heights to Harrisburg a few weeks ago and it was expected the local athlete would transfer to the Capital city and cast his athletic fortunes with a high school at that place. It was announced yesterday that "Huck" has returned from Harrisburg and will live with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kline, 278 Summit avenue, Cedar Heights, and continue his schooling here.

Kline will be a senior next term. He is sixteen, five feet six inches tall and weighed 170 pounds last season. He played left guard on the football team, covered right field for the baseball team, and was a guard on the basketball team. One of his outstanding characteristics was his ability as a team worker.

"Huck's" return to the Golden Bears will be the source of much satisfaction from coaches and players alike for he was one of the most popular boys in the school.
