A dozen residents of the district are circulating the petitions on the following names:

1. Spring Mill, Lou Kasopsky, a grocer, emerged as spokesman for members who favor the annexation. His store, at Hector and Jones st., is a block east of the present borough line.

2. Township.

Solicitor more than 20 years of first class townships in the area. He is considered an authority on his chosen subject.

Something happened in our town yesterday and today. It began with the mumble and moan of a great motor, followed by the hiss and spit of powerful air-brakes, as a heavy battering ram was hurled against the walls of an old house.

"It's said to see it go," I said. A young Modern rejoined— "Well, make way . . . !"

Conshohocken — Harry Coe Brown of 258 Linden Drive, Trappe, was elected teaching principal of the public elementary schools at a Monday meeting of the school board officers.

First change in the post in 15 years, he succeeds George T. Jackson, who resigned last month to accept a principal's post in the Oxford Area Schools.

The new principal will also teach the sixth grade in addition to his administrative duties. While this arrangement was in effect in the first year that Mr. Jackson held the principal's post, in later years his duty was exclusively administrative.

Setting Brown's salary at $40,000 per annum, it was emphasized that the conclusion of teaching duties in the school year will be a factor.

The grocery firm, he said, is willing to build a store with 9,000 to 10,000 square feet of space on land he owns at the intersection. A zoning that is needed, he said, is down-zoning of a parcel of ground.

The supervisors said Aug. 10 that they would not change the zoning. The tract presently is in the business zone classification for a depth of 200 feet. The applicant is asking the line be extended 200 feet in order to provide adequate parking for clients.

Key Action by Board

Dr. Erb followed his group's suggestion that the board engage an architect to make suggestions as to carrying out the survey recommendations.

"We can't tell an architect what to do, but what we want," said Walter Phipps, Jr.

Harry Ellam, treasurer, interjected: "We don't want to go ahead too quickly."

"I think we should have some professional assistance, perhaps," Dr. Erb.

"Let's take the time to study the survey results thoroughly," countered Phipps. "I think we are trying to digest the survey results first."

Dr. Erb had another pertinent suggestion, "Let us build through State Educational Authority a committee of local authority," said forcefully.

Dr. Erb still urged some action but could get no support from other members. "That's my opinion," Erb said. "Go 'til you can't."

The name and number change is necessary to prepare for the change to dial operation in the next few years, he explained.

"In the not-too-distant-future," Caton said, "telephone users will be able to dial the calls direct to any telephone in the United States and Canada." The central office and number change is one essential phase in the development of this program."

Today about 20 million telephones already are on this two-letter, five-figure dialing basis.

Dr. Erb followed his query with the suggestion that the board cede an architect to select and carry out the recommendations.

"We can't tell an architect what to do until we know what we want," said Walter Phillips.

But the school should have no professional assistance, personnel

The professional survey, just completed by the Educational Service Bureau of the University of Pennsylvania at a cost of $2000 to the school district and requiring two months of consultants' attention, was made public only a week ago. It recommended a new $450,000 public elementary school and $50,000 in improvements at the Leas school.

Expected to be a major issue at the next board meeting, it was not referred to until Dr. Erb's eleventh hour query.

Dr. Erb:

"Let's take the time to study the survey results thoroughly," countered Phelps. "I think we are trying to digest the survey results first."

Dr. Erb had another pertinent suggestion. "Let us build through the State Educational Authority rather than through a local authority," said forcefully.

Dr. Erb still urged some action to get support from other directors. That's my opinion," he said. "But I'll wait."

AS THEY PASS

CHS 'Old Grad' Visits Wayne Woods Before Resuming Life in Europe

By Elizabeth G. Collins

WHEN THE 16-YEAR-OLD slight, immature lad reached out to receive his diploma from Conshohocken High School in the late nineties, few in the audience chose him to move ahead to one of the more colorful careers of any of the school's graduates. . . . William Allen, now 74, left the Wayne Woods home of a cousin last Saturday for his 188th crossing of the Atlantic and a pleasant prospect of three more years of living abroad, this time his choice, Barcelona, Spain. . . . For the last three years, the snowily-haired, friendly retired cruise director of the Cunard Line has lived in glamorous Cannes and Nice, France and along the French Riviera. . . . Earlier he has made his home in Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, and Russia, before the Iron Curtain was drawn against visitors. . . . Leaving Conshohocken immediately after high school graduation, he worked first as a shoe salesman for a large New York department store, going straight from there to Cunard as a cruise director, getting to know hundreds of "very important people" and stage, concert, screen and radio stars in his 30 years experience, and picking up a fluent knowledge of French, Spanish, German, Russian and Italian tongues. . . . Coming to America last May, William Allen first visit of his cousin, Roy Matthews of West Philadelphia, then her daughter, Park Edwina J. Girard, Jr., of Woodhill Rd. in the Upper Merion Township community. . . . The only other member of his family is a brother, Harry of Norristown, a retired employe of Alan Wood Steel Co. . . . His wife, Harrisburg's Clara Bell, passed away 15 years ago. . . .

It looked like just one more juvenile spirit ready to vocalize the Davy Crockett song when the nine-year-old mounted the stage of Cape May's Convention Hall at weekly amateur night recently. . . . When pert-faced Tommy Carroll lustily sang out the familiar tale of Davy, complete with dramatic effects, the big audience smothered him with applause. . . . "I've heard many youngsters sing 'Davy Crockett' said the judge, but that's the best I've heard," said the master of ceremonies. . . . As a result of the ovation given the fourth grader at St. Matthew's parochial school, this youngest child of the Bob Carrolls of W. Tenthers, was a bid to take part in the final contest Aug. 31 at the shore resort. . . .

The Upper Merion resident, recently enroute to Ohio, arrived at Pittsburgh for an evening visit with the James Johnstones of suburban Gleneshaw, former Conshohockenites. . . . Betty Ellis, Hughes Park substitute teacher in Conshohocken schools inquired of Mr. Johnstone, Conshohocken's former Kitty Hastings and also a former Conshohocken public school teacher, about a bid to take part in the final contest Aug. 31 at the shore resort. . . .

Lightning Rod Club Sponsors 'Race' Tonight

Prizes To Be Awarded Drivers Who Run Mapped-out Course

Conshohocken — Using a mapped-out route, about 20 young drivers will take their cars tonight over a timed "obstacle course," Paul Righter, president of the Lightning Rod Hot Rod Club, announced yesterday.

The race, sponsored by the local organization, will run from 6 to 7 tonight, starting at Seventh Ave. and Fayette St. with clubs from Norristown and Berwyn competing. Righter emphasized that the car operators will observe all highway and motor code rules, speed limits and traffic signals. It will be a timed race, though not a "speed" contest in the auto-racing sense.

Prizes will be awarded to the drivers and co-drivers of the first cars to complete the course. First prize, to be awarded in duplicate to driver and co-driver (who will be reading the map en route) will be a club-paid lubrication and oil change. Second prize, also awarded in duplicate, will be 10 gallons of gasoline. Third prize will be a car lubrication, also in duplicate.

About 25 members of the Lightning Rod Hot Rod Club of Conshohocken now carry their club's official chrome shield on their cars' front fenders. Besides the club name, the plates bear the auto-engine insignia of the organization.

Righter emphasized yesterday that the club's main purpose is the promotion of safe driving among drivers — not just their own members, but among all motor-vehicle operators. The boys, most of whom are in their teens or early 20s, try to be examples of safe driving habits, Righter said.

He added that no member has had a traffic violation since joining the club. All rules of the road must be observed at all times. Righter explained, and the club has a committee which occasionally checks on its members' driving habits.

The Conshohocken club is one of many such units which are members of the Pennsylvania Timing Association. It meets Tuesday nights at 7:30 at its headquarters at 100 Ford St. West Conshohocken. The club has about 28 members now and admits new ones as they qualify under its safe-driving policies.

The first cook out of the summer was held last night.

Officers of the club, besides President Righter, are Thomas Kowalkowski, vice president; Richard Arndt, recording secretary; Lawrence Meyer, corresponding secretary; and Thomas Lepora, treasurer.

Righter yesterday said: "I want to thank all persons who helped support our club and its safe-driving program by attending our July 23 dance."

Benigno Listed For 2 Grades

Enrollment Drops In West Side School

West Conshohocken — Because of decreasing enrollment in the West Conshohocken public school, Philip Benigno was appointed teacher of both the fourth and fifth grades at a school board meeting Monday night.

Benigno has been teacher of the fifth grade. The resignation of Miss Georgianna W. Jackson, 210 Harry St., Conshohocken, fourth grade teacher, was accepted. A teacher at the school since 1946, Miss Jackson is planning to remove from the district.

The combining of the two grades was termed an economy measure. Mrs. Mildred K. Rice, principal, reported total registration in the six grades was 175.

Classes will resume Sept. 7, according to the schedule for the school year 1955-56, submitted by Mrs. Rice. A teachers' meeting will take place at 10 A. M. the first day. Classes will be conducted on a half-day session for the remainder of the first week with the 185-day term ending June 15.

The board's treasurer's report revealed that during the month a check had been received from the Montgomery County commissioners in the amount of $15,379.55, representing payments on back taxes.

This amount substantially boosted the school district's funds and on Monday night bills totaling $6,857.44 were reported approved for payment, leaving the cash balance as of Aug. 1 at $10,522.11.

Payments included the retirement of a $5000 temporary loan made earlier in the year to meet salary requirements.

Y., woman died and her sister, two years older, was seriously injured when the sedan in which they were riding was smashed like a tin-can by a careening tractor-trailer at 4 Tuesday afternoon.

The fatal crash occurred on the Delaware River Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, three miles south of the Norristown interchange, near here. The driver of the tractor-trailer was critically injured.

Pronounced dead the scene, of a broken neck and fractured skull was Mrs. Jessie Douglas, believed to be the driver. Admitted to Montgomery Hospital with severe skull injury was her sister, Mrs. Frieda Adler, also of Forest Hills.

Lang of Pennsylvania State Police, Plymouth Barracks, investigating officers, said Miller, headed west on the extension with a load of cardboard, first hit the rear of another tractor-trailer, traveling in the same direction, then bounced across the median strip, hit the woman's car broadside and hurled it into an embankment.

Damaged by Fire

Lafayette Hill — Robert Schwartz, 31, of 4141 Tynwood Rd., proprietor of a Tynwood Music Shop, 2249 Germantown Ave., Philadelphia, today tentatively set loss from a stubborn fire starting in the basement of the shop, Tuesday night, at between $35,000 and $38,000.

Schwartz himself discovered the fire when he returned to the shop at 6:15 to pick up a package he had forgot.

Two fire companies responded, but the blaze, fed by inflammable stock, quickly gained headway. Dense smoke hampered the firemen, one requiring hospital treatment when overcome. The floor of the store was so badly damaged business is temporarily suspended.

large trees, their great branch-arms meeting those on the opposite side of Fayette St.

The garden, with its yellow paths, was intimate and beautiful, with big beds of pansies, and lovely and well-tended roses. And every day—down on his knees, close to the earth, was a gardener, a short, sturdy English gardener, James Sinnat, who put his very heart into his work, so that the earth could "Reach for a soul in grass and flowers."

Back beyond the arches of trained roses there was a little summer house, which had a curious peaked roof and supports, which looked distinctly Chinese, and although I have sat there many times, it never occurred to me until the other day that it was probably built about the time of the Centennial Fair held in Philadelphia in 1876, — after which there was such vogue for Chinese and Japanese things. To one, it had always been a curiosity.

The 4th Ave. end of the property, with its land lying lower than the rest, was given over to a fine vegetable garden, where the corn grew high. That was a simple and an industrious age, and summer kitchens were busy places with preserving and canning, for plentiful providing for luxurious winter tables.

There is a story of Mrs. Wood that may be told now, for they are all long since gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood were a devoted couple, and both persons of forceful character. Mrs. Wood disapproved of drink in the public places here. To Mr. Wood it was the natural thing to do, so one day he went into one of the downtown saloons, and later was horrified to find Mrs. Wood standing beside him, and she exclaimed, "Why Mary, this is no place for you!" she looked at him serenely and said, "Any place that is right for you, David, is right for me." — And forever after that he took what he wished to drink in his own home, which Mrs. Wood made a delightful place.

When I knew her, Mrs. Wood was an old lady who carried herself beautifully, and who ran her property with great executive ability. Her dining room was a shining and sparkling thing of beauty, with each maid serving as though she took pride in the perfection of her work.

My memories of Mrs. Wood are all lovely, with some of the nicest "pictures" of her out in the garden she planned and loved, cutting roses for the house, or down near the ground, picking pansies and the smaller flowers, — with her skirts billowing around her.

There were, of course, no tall trees in there, lower garden as there are today, and the view was something to rejoice in, and cherish, for the distant blue hills were beautiful at evening, — with the great expanse of sky, and "Turner" sunsets.

It was many years before I realized that we were at the peak of the land that makes the Schuylkill River take a complete U turn between Norristown and Spring Mill. I only knew that when the wind came from that direction we could hear Norristown's fire alarm, and that when we heard the train whistles clearly down at Spring Mill, we were "going to have rain."

Real Estate people today have a great way of putting up signs which say, — "Homes for Sale." What they mean is "Houses for Sale."

Homes are made by the persons living in them. My memories are too late to include Mr. David Wood (brother of our "old Squire Wood") — or the older daughter, Hannah, Mrs. Jonathan Jones, who, even then, with her family, had long since left the house at 516 Fayette St., where Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Jones afterward lived for so many years. But the place to me meant Mrs. Perot, and her mother, that impressive person of strong and fine character, Mrs. David Wood.

There is a story of Mrs. Wood that may be told now, for they are all long since gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood were a devoted couple, and both persons of forceful character. Mrs. Wood disapproved of drink in the public places here. 'Reach for a Soul in Grass and Flowers' . . . the Horace C. Jones residence before wrecking crew arrived Saturday.

Some time after Mrs. Wood's death Mrs. Perot had the house enlarged, and as it was as we all last saw it. Mr. Perot kept it so while he lived, as did Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Jones through the years of their ownership, for they bought it after Mr. Perot's death.

Just a few years ago a house was taken down stone by stone: today it is astoundingly slimmed down in two or three days, leaving you a little incredulous that the thing has really happened.

All my life I have seen people look at and enjoy that home, and step on their way by to look into, and receive refreshment from that garden; — literally hundreds.

All up and down the street today I have seen persons who looked unhappy, as they said to each other, "It is too bad to have it go!" — And I was surprised at how many of them were the men of the town. People sad to see something lovely demolished, — making way for "progress."

Our appreciation and thanks should go to those who created, maintained and constantly increased the beauty of that property, all through the many years, and to those who have preserved it for us. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

We make prayer now that the new owners may go forward with that feeling for the town, for certainly "Man does not live by bread alone."

West Side Sets Street Repairs

West Conshohocken — Discussion of a program of highway improvements in the borough highlighted the meeting of Borough Council last night.

Bids, previously received, for material to complete oiling and chipping many of the municipality's streets showed the cost would be $1373, this amount to include oil and stone, exclusive of labor. A roller is to be hired for the time necessary. Work is to be done by township forces.

Streets to be improved have not yet been definitely decided, with the exception of a portion of Moyer St., which has been made a "must" because of repeated requests from residents who are forced to use an unimproved roadway.

The project will get under way as soon as the streets committee, with George Haver as chairman, has decided where the work is to start. It is to be completed before the end of this month.

William T. Muldrew, borough engineer, presented a list of streets from which the highway committee will make its selection.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the Philadelphia Suburban Water Co. regarding liability in conjunction with the installation of house services connecting with a new six-inch main now being placed in Airy St., from Spring Garden St. to Davis St.

The main is to replace an existing one and one-half inch service pipe now serving homes in the area. It will provide sufficient volume of water so that a fire plug, requested about two years ago by council, may be installed in the vicinity of the house.

The report of Francis McHugh, treasurer, showed a cash balance of $6433.13 after bills, amounting to $1607.13, had been ordered paid.

Absentees were Paul Harper and Henry McCormick, councilmen, and Mrs. Isabel C. Tyson, borough secretary.

Electrical Failure Delays Commuters

Conshohocken — Dozens of early morning commuters to business and industry in this area were a half hour late today — but it wasn't their fault.

A power failure hit the electrical equipment of the three-car train, leaving Reading Terminal at 7:35, developed between North Broad and 22d St. stations. A crew, rushed to the scene, got the train moving about half hour later.

Due to arrive in Conshohocken at 8:05, it was 8:38 when it pulled in.

New Principal

Contract will save the board the salary of one teacher.

Brown, who has been teaching principal of Collegeville public elementary schools for six years, is a graduate of West Chester Teachers College and is working toward a master's degree at Temple University. He is married and has one child.

A leave of absence granted in the fifth grade for the next term, caused transfer of a sixth grade teacher there, leaving a vacancy in the latter grade.

Mrs. Ethel Clavarelli, R.N., wife of Emil Clavarelli, 525 Fayette St., the latter the most recent member of the school board, was elected school district nurse at a salary of $3600 per annum, to succeed Mrs. Eleanor Vercoe Filipatrick, who resigned last month.

Mrs. Clavarelli is a graduate of the Homeopathic Hospital School of Nursing, Philadelphia and has also had post-graduate training there.

John R. Steinmetz, Philadelphia, a graduate of Temple University, was named health and physical education instructor in the high school, at a salary of $3200 yearly. He will succeed Robert H. Buleck, leaving the teaching profession to enter insurance work.

Three other resignations were announced at the session by Dr. Russell C. Erb, chairman of the teachers and textbook committee. Included is that of Dr. Walter S. Darby, 3004 Church Rd., Lafayette Hill, who will open offices in the latter community. It was reported at the session.

Mrs. Lucille Thielnick, second grade teacher resigned to take a post in Lower Moreland Twp. schools, where she will live.

Miss Dolores Padaro, Second Ave. near Maple, English teacher in the high school, tendered her resignation, because of approaching marriage and residence in Florida.

tion. Next year's work along this line, extending from Third Ave. to the upper avenues, will have to be freshly financed.

Gravinese looks to the newly-levered real-estate transfer tax, instituted for the first time in the borough's history this year after recommendation by THE RECORDER, to make up the extra-big appropriation for streets.

"We are not even sure whether we can spend $20,000 as appropriated. It may not be available, unless we get a fair income from the real-estate tax," he added.

"As it is now, we are going ahead slowly, hoping we will have sufficient money to do what we have planned," Gravinese said.

He said contracts already have been let for the road oil and the stone for chipping and it is expected it will be delivered in time for scheduled use soon.

In the meantime, John Andrey, street foreman, is keeping his staff of six men busy cleaning streets, cutting weeds and tall grass where necessary, and generally keeping the borough highways in good order.

Gravinese said the borough collection of trash, launched earlier this year for the first time in borough history, is moving smoothly, with scarcely a serious complaint. Three new street department employees were added to take care of this.

Walter Phipps, Jr. presided. Directors Dr. Walter K. Willis and Robert C. Long were absent.

The next regular meeting will be held Sept. 12, postponed one week due to Labor Day.

Historic Mansion, Furnishings, And $5000 Bequeathed by Widow To Former Harmonville Resident

A casual meeting at a dog show between a wealthy Norristown woman breeder of Birlands, French shepherd dogs, and a former Whitehorse Twp. man and his wife who has since been divorced, has resulted in his being willed virtually all the woman dog fancier's personal belongings.

Recipient of the unusual bequest is Stanley J. Furst, 100 E. 1st St. in Harmonville, who last year in Plymouth Meeting, while vice president of the General Contractors Co., Philadelphia, he was in the city.

Author of the surprising will is the late Mrs. Ellen Newbold Cooke Jacobs, widow of George Jacobs, an attorney, and tall, imperious chieftain of "Sydney Farm," his 140-year-old ancestral home at Marshall St. and Sandy Hill Rd., Norristown, just over the Plymouth Twp. line. Mrs. Jacobs died there on July 6, after a four years illness.

Described in the will as a "friend," Furst was left the three-story, 15-room stone mansion, its furnishings, household goods, art objects, valuable Birland dogs, kennels and $5,000 in cash to boot.

The former Whitehorse Twp. resident is also named co-executor with Harry J. Alker, Norristown and Philadelphia attorney, remembered in the will with its largest cash bequest, $50,000. Cheng Dick, a single-houseman, will get $20,000.

His value first "undetermined," the Jacobs estate is now said to be worth $200,000, the estimate based on revenue stamps issued in connection with it.

A member of a family dating back to Mayflower days, Mrs. Jacobs was survived only by a number of cousins, most of them socially prominent and a number of them residing in the Chestnut Hill area.

Although the will by-passed these relatives in its major bequests, two are directly remembered. Richard S. Newbold, 6512 Stenton Ave., Chestnut Hill, a cousin, is given $10,000. Another cousin, Mrs. Ellen Newbold, 100 E. 1st St., Norristown, is given $10,000. Four daughters of Richard Newbold are left the residue of the estate, after major bequests and a series of minor ones to relatives, former employees and charitable institutions are paid.

Another cousin by marriage, Mrs. Robert C. Butler, proprietor of the Butler Convalescent Home, Blue Bell, who lived with Mrs. Jacobs during her several months of final illness, is left $10,000.

Montgomery Hospital, Norristown, which Mrs. Jacobs' father aided in founding, will benefit to the extent of $10,000, the bequest in memory of the deceased woman's parents. The sum of $5,000 is left to Norristown Chapter, Red Cross.

Hands of any beneficiaries, disinterested with their shares, were tied by Mrs. Jacobs when she prepared the final testament. A clause stipulates that if "any beneficiary contest the will, he, she or it will forfeit his share."

Furst, resident during a recent weekend visit at the big estate he inherited, said he has as yet made no decision as to whether he will make the gift property his home or dispose of it.

"It's a perfectly lovely house," Furst said appreciatively of "Sydney Farm," and added: "But it is in ghastly shape."

He said he must await a complete appraisal of the estate which "may take 60 days or more."

The only dogs remaining from the once flourishing Jacobs kennels are "Life and Death," whose soulful eyes, mournfully draped by their shaggy black hair, seem to reflect sadness in the absence of their regal, silver-haired mistress.

Used extensively to stand flocks in France, the Birlands are also utilized in remote European areas to draw old-time milk-carts. They are described as friendly, although being bred centuries ago of wolves and robbers.

For many years the largest single breeder of Birlands at her big estate, in the United States, Mrs. Jacobs observed her 62nd birthday just a month before her death.

A member of an old and prominent Norristown family, she was a daughter of the late Major Walter Howard Cooke and Mary Newbold Cooke, and a granddaughter of David and Mary Whipple Chishman Cooke, her ancestry numbering many persons of Colonial importance.

The last of her family, Mrs. Jacobs was long identified with civic and philanthropic undertakings. She was active in Red Cross work in Norristown, a former treasurer of the Montgomery County Board of Public Assistance and a staunch supporter of Montgomery Hospital.

She was a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the National Society of Colonial Dames, the exclusive Acorn Club of Philadelphia and St. John's Episcopal Church, Norristown, where she was baptized and married. Her husband died 25 years ago.

"Mrs. Jacobs was a woman of strong likes and dislikes," a Norristown friend described her. "She liked people to do as she wanted them to — or sometimes they were no longer friends."

In earlier years, she maintained an extensive household staff in the green-trimmed, grey stone house, which has a large reception room, drawing room, library, dining room, kitchen and pantry on the first floor.

Four bedrooms, two baths, a studio and a store room comprise the second floor; five smaller bedrooms and a bath are on the third. The cellar is large but not modernized. Once a butler, a cook, a chambermaid, a gardener and other help had few spare moments at busy "Sydney Farm." But in late years, Mrs. Jacobs disposed of much of the land surrounding the dwelling, discharged her last lone maid because of some minor disagreement and kept only Angela, the gardener, and Cheng Dick, the butler, remembered so generously by his late employer.

Furst's second wife, also a breeder of Birlands and with whom he shared Mrs. Jacobs' early friendship, was the one-time Ida Quigley of Orchard Hill, Lock Haven, whose mother is a world-known breeder.

MANY GENERATIONS OF LIVING represented by 149-year-old "Sydney Farm," home of the late Mrs. Ellen Newbold Cooke Jacobs, Marshall St. and Sandy Hill Rd., near Plymouth Twp., willed at her death July 6 to Stanley J. Furst, former Harmonville and Plymouth Meeting resident, as result of friendship based on interest in dogs.

of Pekinese dogs, and whose father was a one-time state senator.

Together, Stanley and Ida Furst attended regularly the weekly sketch classes of the Conshohocken Art League in the Mary H. Wood Park House, when they lived together in the Harmonville home of the late Mrs. William White, president of the Woman's Club of Conshohocken.

Ida Furst had considerable artistic talent, but league members recall her as somewhat aloof and showing only a mild interest in other members.

She first married Albert Whelan of the famed tannery clan, and they reportedly had large establishments in New York City and Deal, N. J.

Educated at convent schools abroad, at private schools in New York and by governess, she married Furst about 1934. She then had two sons by Whelan, Albert, now 27 and Peter, now 25. Both had their earlier education at Newman School, Lakewood, N. J. Peter later was reported to attend Pennsylvania State University.

Close friends of the one-time Mrs. Furst, who had an individualistic basic kind of beauty, have a peculiar theory as to why her marriage to the wealthy Whelan and to Furst, described as "kind and considerate," went on the rocks.

"Ida was brought up with unusual advantages and in a highly social atmosphere, but she was extremely democratic and simple in her tastes," one summed it up.

"She loved to cook and was a marvelous cook — even though she had no training or experience at it, whatever, prior to marriage. She really liked to do her own housework, but both husbands appeared to wait for her to be only a lady of leisure and she was unhappy in the role," the friend said of the former Mrs. Furst.

Some time after her divorce from Furst, she married Franklin Watkins, among America's topmost painters, on an August day in 1942, the couple slipping off quietly to London for their wedding without the trimmings.

For a time, they made their home in a tiny, two-story, front-backed house on the grounds of "The Lindens," the imposing white house at Ridge Pike and Spring Mill Rd., Harmonville, where Ida had made her home with Stanley Furst and already lived for long years. She is now in a small home at Butler Pike and Cor-son's Station, in adjacent Plymouth Meeting.

Watkins is known mainly for his handsome florid faces and his great career "Raiders in Costume," a large oil composition depicting a costumed clown in death, which won the coveted Carnegie National Award about 15 years ago. He was formerly married to Fridolin Olmsted of the famed merchant clan of Philadelphia and New York. In 1947, he was one of five Pennsylvania artists commissioned with 14 other artists from other states to create a comprehensive art panorama of Pennsylvania.

Cheng Dick, the houseman whose 20 years of service with the artist's family was recognized so profitably, is said by intimates of the deceased woman to come of a high-ranking Chinese family.

One son is reported a general in the Nationalist Army of General Chiang Kai-shek. Another is a professor. His wife, the friends say, was assassinated by Communists, and Cheng reported is banned from his homeland because of his upset political conditions.

Mrs. Jacobs' father was a Civil War hero, voted a medal of honor by a special act of Congress for his Bull Run heroism, one of few men so honored.

Serving with Company K in the Fourth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, which he organized, a Civil War record says of him: "Captain Cooke is a young officer but one of the bravest in service." He was discharged with the rank of major.

Furst last visited Mrs. Jacobs with his present wife at Easter. It proved to be his farewell visit to the woman he described as a "very close friend."

Furst's current wife, Gertrude, is a native of Scotland, the marriage reported a result of a World War II romance. Enlisting in the U. S. Air Corps about the time of the break-up of his marriage with the former Ida Quigley Whelan, he was first an instructor in Colorado and later was assigned to European duty.

The Jacobs gardens contain a quantity of fine specimens of old English boxwood, placed there in profusion when "Sydney Farm" was at the height of its glory.

For the Jacobses, where once Briard lovers from this nation and Europe came to admire or purchase Mrs. Jacobs' fine animals, are almost non-existent. Deteriorating during her long illness, they are virtually beyond repair.

any conspiracy or subversive act aimed at the United States.

At the conclusion of the scheduled closed hearing, Mrs. Knowles was dismissed to appear at the scheduled open meeting at 2:30.

Later, she was notified that the open session was postponed until 3:30.

At 4 J. G. Sourwine, subcommittee counsel, informed her that because the Senate had so much late-minute business to complete, no senator was available to conduct the hearing.

Sourwine informed the Plymouth Meeting librarian she would be notified if the subcommittee wished to have her appear later, telling her at the time she had satisfied the current summons.

Both Mrs. Knowles and her lawyer said "they had no idea, whatever," whether she would ever again be summoned.

Sawyer said he had not known Mrs. Knowles before Thursday, when she engaged him to accompany her to the hearing. She had only a little more than 24 hours to hire counsel and make arrangements to travel to Washington.

The Federal government bears the cost of transportation to and from hearings on a mileage basis and pays a usual witness fee of about $1 per day. No other expenses, such as meals, are permitted.

Mrs. Knowles made the journey both ways by train, accompanied by Sawyer. They left early Friday morning and returned Friday night.

Mrs. Knowles' hearing before the Senate Subcommittee took place just eight days after U. S. Congressman B. Carroll Reece (R-Tennessee) flayed the Fund for the Republic for its award to the Plymouth Friends, on the floor of the House in Washington.

Flourtown, Oreland and Chestnut Hill.

They inspected the factory at 8:30 A. M.

R. Lincoln (Bob) Hain, supervisor in the west district, where the plant is located, said on Tuesday that he did not visit the Lee plant or attempt to discuss with executives of the firm the matter that irritated so many residents.

While many residents were able to reach Fetterolf and White at their homes, only one or two succeeded in getting through to Hain. He has an unlisted telephone number. It was learned. It is CO 6-4351.

"Why should I see Mr. Garthwaite in this matter?" Hain inquired. "Fetterolf and White went. They should have come to my home and picked me up, and taken me along," he commented. "As long as they made the inspection, I saw no reason to go down myself."

Fetterolf hastened from his home on Cricket and Valley Green Rds., near Flourtown, without breakfast, in order to see whether he could be helpful in bringing relief to homeowners.

White took time out from his work as superintendent of the Richmond plant of E. J. Lavine & Co. in order to inspect the Lee premises as well as a number of homes from which complaints were received. He devoted several hours to the task at hand. The consensus was that the two men accomplished a marvelous public relations job for Lee Co. Conshohocken as well as the township of Whitmarsh.

Merble Hall Swim Club, Ridge Pike, Lafayette Hill, had to be drained the day before, because of soot covering the water on Monday, according to Walter M. Strepper, proprietor, and George Miller, assistant.

"It was one hell of a mess," Miller said.

Harold McCuen, whose ancestral home, "Mount Joy," is located on North Lane opposite the Lee factory, drove his son, James Edwals, eight, to Hain's home at 109 E. 14th Ave. for Hain's inspection.

The child awakened from his sleep with his face, ears and neck blackened in a minute's march. Soot fell into every crevice of Mount Joy's 18 rooms, even penetrating into a new typewriter under cover in a far corner.

No officials were on duty at the factory at the early hour. Mr. and Mrs. McCuen were told in response to a telephone call. The couple and their son walked across the street to the employment entrance so that guards on duty could behold the little soot-faced comedian.

Before the child could be bathed, soot had to be scrubbed from the tub. The oily substance defied soap and water.

Charles D. Robison, acting chief of the division of air pollution control, bureau of industrial hygiene, Harrisburg, conducted an investigation for several hours. He talked by telephone with E. Elden (Jim) Leach, vice president of Lee Rubber and Tire Corp., but was unable to inspect the Lee premises because Leach said at 4:30 P. M. he "was tired and leaving for the day." Robison also conferred with Fetterolf and promised the investigation would be continued.

Chief Mitchell was in a position to talk sympathetically with irate residents. So was Tom White. The soot hit both their homes. Mr. and Mrs. White and family are living in a new residence on Thomas Rd. near Whitmarsh Valley Country Club. An air intake fan pulled the soot out of the atmosphere into the home.

The supervisors inspected soot-littered Mount Joy, along with Chief Mitchell. The soot was drifted like flakes of snow on the front porch of the historic home in 1718. Three taffy-colored kittens and "Misty," a thoroughbred collie, became fully black. Misty is normally black and white.

successful nominee will be contacted by the editors and arrangements will be made for a writeup with pictures. The writeup and photographs will be published in the near future in The Recorder.

Age is not a factor.

You need not sign your name to the nomination you send in, but your name and address will be evidence of good faith.

A wide variety of subjects is under consideration for photographs. City, township and state police are cooperating wholeheartedly in the safety campaign and will extend congratulations to the various winners.

Hobbies will be of value in determining the kind of material that will go into the story and photograph. Perhaps a father nominated as a safe driver would prefer that his wife and children pose with him when David Harold McCuen, chief photographer of Weekly Review newspapers, covers the assignment. Should his wife be the victor, she would have the privilege of inviting her family to be with her in the safety scene.

No money is offered as prizes. The editors believe that emphasis on safe driving is more important than monetary consideration, and may actually result in saving one's own life.

Funds Sought For Ambulance

Clay Fire Co. Starts Canvas of Homes

West Conshohocken — Members of the active department and ambulance unit of the George Clay Fire Co. are in the midst of an intensive campaign for funds to maintain and keep in service the well-equipped ambulance that has traveled more than 5000 miles on calls during the past year.

Starting Monday night, a house-to-house canvas was begun to contact every one of the 650 homes in the borough for money to continue the work. The campaign is to be conducted in this borough only, but contributions from persons living outside the municipality are highly acceptable.

Activities of the vehicle and its personnel during the past year have covered a radius of 30 miles from West Conshohocken, according to Russell Drivers, all volunteers, took the vehicle on a total of more than 500 trips during the period, and service is available on a 24-hour basis.

The vehicle is completely equipped for rescue and first aid work, and oxygen tanks and apparatus are a part of these modern facilities.

Contributions to the fund may be addressed to Russell in care of the George Clay Ambulance Fund, at

Do-Nothing Supervisor Reason He Favors Town, Spring Mill Grocer Says

Prevalence of a "do-nothing for Spring Mill" attitude fostered recent renewal of a movement favoring annexation of the community by the neighboring borough of Conshohocken, it was learned yesterday.

Lou Kasopky, a grocer since 1945, at Hector and Jones St., a block east of the present dividing line, said he and quite a few neighbors think annexation would be to their advantage.

"There was talk about annexation four or five years ago," he remembered. "It died down. Since then we haven't fared too good in our neighborhood and I guess we had a lot to do with reviving the idea since we feel we don't mean anything to Whitemarsh."

Kasopky declined to identify neighbors for whom he was speaking. "We're sticking together in this fight and everybody will know who we are soon enough," he said.

"Whitemarsh Twp. has done nothing for us. They don't clean the streets in my neighborhood, and they don't absolutely nothing about the sink we have so much of around here."

Pressed for an explanation, he said he was referring to orders which he attributed to industry. Seven of the township's nine major industries are in the area marked for annexation by Conshohocken.

Asked if he thought the borough would help control pollution of the air, he replied unhesitatingly: "Nothing has been done so far — could it be worse?"

He said he has never seen R. Lincoln "Bob" Hain, supervisor of the West district, in spite of the numerous complaints he registered about conditions. Hain is executive secretary-treasurer of Conshohocken Chamber of Commerce and secretary of the Conshohocken Association.

Kasopky said he had never been able to reach the West District supervisor personally, but he got some effort should have been made by Hain to investigate complaints from time to time.

"It's worthwhile trying to see if the borough of Conshohocken would try to stop the odors," Kasopky concluded.

(The township highway department worked on Monday along Jones St. and elsewhere in Spring Mill. Thomas J. White, Sr., vice president of the board, said he personally

Hundreds Ignore State Ban On Bathing in Wissahickon

Warning Deters A Few, But Most Visitors Defy It

Flourtown — Peace is everywhere these summer days in Fort Washington State Park, even at the risk of bringing on an epidemic!

DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER.

Along both banks of the creek are posted signs reading "WARNING DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER. DO NOT BATHE IN THIS WATER."

Brandt D. Earhart, Broad Ave. supervisor of the park, said there is not a great deal that can be done about keeping people out of the water.

"It's pretty difficult to keep them out, especially in this weather," he said. "We have the place well posted and we do caution them, but they use the creek at their own risk."

Earhart added, however, that focusing people who would ordinarily swim there have been deterred by the warning signs and confine themselves to picnicking in the park.

Earhart explained that the pollution of the creek was due largely to the increased building in the surrounding area in recent years.

"Most of these homes are not septic and where you have houses with cesspools close to the creek, you are bound to have some degree of pollution," he said.

In other respects, there have been no complaints about the park so far this year, Earhart disclosed.

This is in sharp contrast to the state of things summer before last when residents of the area raised a loud protest against conditions at the park, particularly the transgression of careless parkers, indecent exposure on the part of park patrons, abusive language and the use of intoxicating beverages within the confines of the park.

The park, which is now under the authority of the State Department of Forests and Water, has two main sections in Flourtown, the Mill Hill section and the Fort Hill section. . . on most days through the summer, with a crowd of about 4800 each weekend.

The parking problem has been alleviated considerably by the opening of additional parking space and use of fields. Earhart said the park is now able to take care of some 700 cars a day.

Park officials estimate that a total of 800 persons daily visit the three Fort Washington Park sites. . . the Mill Hill section in Flourtown, the Mill Hill section and the Fort Hill section. . . on most days through the summer, with a crowd of about 4800 each weekend.

The building fund now has been increased $25,000 and $30,000, and the hospital equipment fund was augmented during the past year by the ladies auxiliary, which raised more than $50,000 at its Main Street Fair.

Miller said the big problem now in erection of the addition, is whether or not federal funds will be made available. K. S. aid was given in the amount of $250,000 when the $350,000 building project was finished four years ago.

Miller said federal hospital funds are awarded on the basis of need and that Philadelphia as a city now has more hospital beds per 1000 population than any other city in the state. The Quaker City, therefore, is low on the priority list for such aid, he stated.

Keep Alive in '55 Drinking Water Plus Speeding Make Dangerous Mixture

(Fourth of a Series)

How tragic — or possibly tragic in the future, if the trend continues — is this story of a young husband and wife and their two little sons who lived in their home in the Philadelphia Metropolitan area, they drove to one of the southern states to vacation for a week with relatives. On the way home last Saturday, the young wife said, the husband at the wheel of their spectacular convertible with its luxurious upholstery approached a long, straight-ahead stretch of highway.

The madly adventurous type, he pushed down the gas pedal and propelled the family car — with its precious cargo of four along at 90 miles an hour, remarking that "the car has blow-out proof tires and can take it because it's inspected, so don't be scared."

Miraculously, perhaps, no accident occurred — but that's only half the story. The rest, as reported by the wife, is that when the family arrived home, the father of the family spent nearly five hours that night "out drinking" and somehow managed to come home in the early hours of the morning — but so drunk that he collapsed on the floor of his home.

True, he had brought his car safe into "home port" and his family that day had not died in a crash resulting from excessive — and illegal — speed, possibly while the operator of the vehicle was under the influence of alcohol.

But what of the future? One shudders to think of what may happen when this same irresponsible driver — some day or night — combines liquor and his high-powered convertible.

A decrease in traffic and pedestrian deaths in Montgomery County during the first five months of this year has been reported by the Bureau of Highway Safety in Harrisburg.

Persons killed in traffic accidents decreased from 23 in 1954 to 14 in 1955. Rural area deaths increased from three to four in 1955, while urban deaths dropped from 20 to 10.

Facilities among pedestrians showed a decrease from 12 to seven. The rural figures were three deaths in 1954 and two in 1955, with urban totals dropping from nine to five.

Montgomery County led the 25 counties which showed a decrease during the first five months of this year.

The National Safety Council merit award has been given to the Philadelphia Electric Co. for the fourth consecutive year. It is announced today. The electric company qualified for the award because of its low injury rate in 1954. Ned D. Desobry, president of the NEC, said:

Nearly all of us eagerly look forward to Friday because, to most of us, it means another weekend has arrived. . . a time for pleasure, relaxation, rest, or personal enrichment. . . a picnic and swim with the family, horseback riding.

Long-Range Expansion Program Launched by Chestnut Hill Hospital

Chestnut Hill — A long-range expansion program at Chestnut Hill Hospital, to cost $1,250,000 and looking ahead to needs 10 to 20 years hence, is under way. J. Don Miller, hospital administrator, announced Saturday.

The plans call for probable air-conditioning of at least the operating rooms and offices and possibly the patients' rooms, besides enlargement of the parking lot to hold nearly 300 cars, Miller said.

The addition to the present structure is to be erected so that three more stories could be placed on top of it and when needed in the foreseeable future, Miller said.

Miller said the new building, of three stories with basement and sub-basement, would contain the radiological administrative offices and an operating-room suite. The kitchen and dining rooms would be enlarged, too.

Miller said the big problem now in erection of the addition, is whether or not federal funds will be made available. K. S. aid was given in the amount of $250,000 when the $350,000 building project was finished four years ago.

Miller said federal hospital funds are awarded on the basis of need and that Philadelphia as a city now has more hospital beds per 1000 population than any other city in the state. The Quaker City, therefore, is low on the priority list for such aid, he stated.

The building fund now has been increased $25,000 and $30,000, and the hospital equipment fund was augmented during the past year by the ladies auxiliary, which raised more than $50,000 at its Main Street Fair.

Quaker to Face Walker Tonight

Conshohocken — Quaker Chemical will face Walker Brothers in a series playoff game at 6:30 tonight at the Community Field, 11th Ave. and Harry St. Berks County.

The ball bounded from a playground adjacent to the Schuylkill Expressway in West Conshohocken last Dec. 11 to set the wheels in motion that led to the court action.

The trespass action was filed on behalf of Terence C. Cunningham, 10, by his father, Edward D. Cunningham, 211 Crawford Ave., West Conshohocken, against Lewis C. Keller, West Lawn, Berks County.

Terence was playing on the playground as Keller was driving on the Expressway. The ball — bounded across the roadway and the boy and companion, Harry Gruber, nine, got out to recover it.

Terence was struck by Keller's station wagon resulting in injuries which caused him to be hospitalized until Feb. 7.

Conshohocken Legion team will be pitted against Norristown Brick Co. team of Elmwood Park A League in the young league.

At the second game in the series last night at Elmwood Park, Conshohocken lost to Norristown Brick 10 to 2, after winning 14 games straight.

Meeting the Brick team Monday night here in the opening series game, Conshohocken edged Brick, 5 to 4.

The tournament to determine the state championship will be held at Doylestown, Aug. 17 to 20, inclusive.

Conshohocken is in the lower section of the Lower Merion League, including Plymouth, Upper Merion and E. Norristown. Its 14 wins easily made it the winner in that group.
